Student Awards
Recipient Report 2011/2012

Western
Thank you for supporting Western’s students

Your gift to create a student award means that more deserving young men and women are living the Western Experience. They are learning from the extraordinary teaching and research of our dedicated faculty, and developing the leadership skills they need to become thoughtful citizens.

During the 2011/12 academic year, your support helped reach more than 4,100 graduate and undergraduate students at Western, providing them with $10.4 million in donor-funded scholarships, awards and bursaries.

As this report illustrates, Western is creating opportunities for our students to become global leaders. From overseas study programs to international athletic competitions, Western’s students are making their mark.

We are committed to offering more global opportunities for our students, by ensuring that 10 per cent of our students receive an overseas learning experience, while growing our international student body to 10 per cent of the Western population. Our goal is to make sure that the best and brightest students from Canada and around the world enter our doors for an extraordinary learning experience.

In the coming months, you will learn more about how we plan to achieve our goals, by tripling the number of available undergraduate student scholarships and providing more than 2,000 graduate student awards.

I sincerely thank you for creating and supporting student awards at Western. Your gift provides students with the determination, confidence and encouragement to pursue their passions – both inside the classroom and around the globe.

Trevor Bieber loves rare books, particularly from the 18th and 19th centuries.

For Trevor, these books are invaluable to his academic research. But acquiring these rare tomes can be pricey. That’s why Trevor, a PhD student in philosophy, is a grateful recipient of the William A. McKenzie, Ontario Graduate Scholarship (OGS), held at Foundation Western.

“Many of the books necessary for my research have to be shipped from England, adding costs to my research,” he says. “This scholarship has allowed me to gain access to books that are key to my studies.”

Trevor comes to philosophy with great curiosity. “I’ve always been interested in exploring the big unanswered questions, and the idea of how we can use reason and logic as a way of describing our experiences,” he says. “What defines a truth or belief — and why?”

Admittedly, his work isn’t exactly “top of mind” thinking for most people. But that’s what makes his OGS funding more significant. “Often, the value produced by historians, artists, musicians, writers and philosophers cannot be directly converted into monetary value,” he says. “Nonetheless, their work contributes to the well-being of society.”

“Many of the books necessary for my research have to be shipped from England, adding costs to my research. This scholarship has allowed me to gain access to books that are key to my studies.”

Trevor’s life, however, hasn’t always been immersed in philosophy. After growing up in Saskatoon (as a Roughriders fan), Trevor moved to London a decade ago. He completed his undergraduate philosophy degree at Western in 2004, and then he worked at men’s missions and explored Roman Catholic ministry. Trevor also worked in the financial and retail sectors, lived in Ireland for nearly a year (where he developed a penchant for stout beer and rugby), and travelled to France, Italy, Greece and Switzerland.

Recently, he had the unique opportunity to thank his scholarship donor, Mrs. Anne McKenzie, in person. “The McKenzie’s donation has helped contribute to one of my most rewarding years of graduate studies so far,” says Trevor, who plans to graduate in 2014.

This fall will see him venturing into the classroom to teach ethics. “I find it easier to get students to question the values they already have,” he adds, “and then help them connect those values to decisions they make everyday.”
Ask Joshua Zyss about his “home away from home,” and he may surprise you. He won’t talk about Toronto, his birthplace. Nor London, his academic home. But he will talk about the Philippines.

Every summer since 2009, Joshua has worked with 20 homeless Filipino children, whom he describes as “my kids.” Through a charity he established with his partner, Blair Smart, called Feeding a Future (www.feedingafuture.org), he provides them with food, clothing and education.

His involvement in the Philippines began during a 2009 medical mission. While there, he witnessed children scavenging recyclable bottles and cans at a dumpsite, which they would use to buy a bowl of rice.

“Here, a child’s dream would be to go to school and eat something once a day, but they couldn’t because they needed to make money to survive,” says Joshua, who is pursuing a double major in medical science and biology at Western. Now, thanks to Feeding a Future, the children attend school and receive two meals every day, plus medical care.

This charitable work makes Joshua a fitting recipient of the Bruno DaSilva Community Service Award, held at Foundation Western. Established by Judite and Ed Holder (pictured above) in memory of their son, the $4,000 scholarship is presented to a third- or fourth-year student who “possesses leadership qualities as evidenced by strong community service.”

“I cannot change the world on my own or make a huge difference, but I can change the life of one child at a time,”

Receiving the award has afforded Joshua the opportunity to make a bigger difference. “During the year, I’ve been able to focus on raising funds to help my kids, and then in the summers to go to the Philippines to provide hands-on help,” he says. “Since going there three years ago, I’ve learned more about life than any class or textbook could ever teach me.”

This passion for learning keeps him focused on the future. After graduating from Western in 2013, Joshua plans to attend medical school and to eventually work with Doctors Without Borders, while also continuing with his commitment to feed, house, clothe and educate his “kids” until they graduate from college.

“I cannot change the world on my own or make a huge difference,” he says, “but I can change the life of one child at a time.”
Earlier this year, Ali Millington stood in front of the Greek parliament buildings, as hundreds of citizens rallied during the country’s financial crisis.

“Being there, in the midst of the protest, made me even more passionate about telling stories of people from around the world,” says the budding journalist and student at Western’s Media, Information and Technoculture (MIT) program.

“One of the most important aspects of a good journalist, or anyone involved in media, is neutrality – and this comes from having an open-minded view of the world,” she adds.

Ali experienced a broader view of the world, thanks to a six-month study term at Erasmus University in Rotterdam, Netherlands. Her overseas studies were partially funded by the William C. Heine International Study Fellowship, endowed at Foundation Western. Established by a bequest from Mr. William Heine (BA’49), the fellowship is awarded to an MIT undergraduate who wants to study outside of Canada.

While defraying some of the costs of living abroad, the scholarship also provided many learning opportunities for Ali, which would have been out of the question if not for the scholarship funding. “Through my studies, I’ve been learning to think critically,” she says. “While it’s important to be critical to an extent, it’s also important to be open-minded, which is one quality I’ve gained while being on the exchange.”

“One of the most important aspects of a good journalist, or anyone involved in media, is neutrality – and this comes from having an open-minded view of the world.”

During her time in Europe, Ali also found time to travel to Germany, Denmark and Scotland. “I was fortunate enough to meet people from all over the world who were keen to share stories with me about their lives and cultures,” says Ali.

Her European studies offered a great training ground to continue as a volunteer news journalist for Western’s radio station, where she’ll be interviewing people and presenting stories on air. Ali also plans to “talk up” her international studies, by volunteering with the international office to promote overseas study opportunities for Western students.

As she heads into her final year of the MIT program, Ali is gearing up for a changing future. “Our world is increasingly revolving around media, especially social media,” she says. “I feel that what I’ve gained from my time at Western and overseas has given me what I need to focus on international journalism.”
Can a concrete canoe float? Will it win a race on water? Why would anyone even try?

These are the kinds of questions that intrigue Robyn Barr, who’s entering her final year of Western’s bachelor of engineering program. “I know the whole idea of a concrete canoe seems a little strange, but it’s possible,” says Robyn.

As a member of the Western Engineering Concrete Canoe Association (WECCA), Robyn and the team designed and built a canoe with lightweight concrete and fine mesh – with the goal of racing it against other Canadian university teams this past May in Moncton, N.B.

“We created a great canoe, but when we pulled it out of the shipping box, it had a large crack down the side,” remembers Robyn, who earned the Charles Yip Memorial 125th Anniversary Alumni Award, endowed at Foundation Western. Established by Mr. Henry Yip to honour his father Charles, the award is granted to a third-year engineering student based on need, academic achievement and extracurricular involvement.

Her teammates repaired the crack with duct tape, and still raced, even though they knew that tape and water don’t mix. “We had to bail a lot of water during the final race,” she says, with a chuckle.

But Robyn is no stranger to the school of hard knocks. A high school dropout, she managed a bar for five years. Knowing she wanted more out of life, Robyn quit her job, with no real plan of what to do next. “It was risky but the best decision I ever made,” she admits.

“If I didn’t have this assistance, I wouldn’t be where I am now.”

She enrolled in an adult high school in London, Ont. (the G.A. Wheable Centre), and focused on advanced math and science courses, receiving her diploma with a 92 per cent average. Robyn, however, struggled to believe she would have the opportunity for a great education. Yet she persevered and soon immersed herself in Western’s civil and structural engineering program at the age of 24 – while still working part-time.

Earning an engineering scholarship last year meant a lot to Robyn. “It was such a great help because I could really focus my energy toward school and on my goal of becoming a structural engineer,” she says. “If I didn’t have this assistance, I wouldn’t be where I am now.”

That makes Robyn so thankful for those who donate to Western. “When donors give to make a difference in a student’s life, that’s such a selfless act,” she says. “Without that kind of support many graduates wouldn’t do what they’re doing right now.”

As for the future, Robyn has big ideas. She might help build a highway or a high rise, a roller coaster or a concert stage. Whatever she does, Robyn has learned a lot from a little duct tape and a generous donor – when everything works together, anything can stick.
Jennifer Martins’s schedule sounds exhausting. Between practices for Western’s varsity rowing team and a full load of classes at dentistry school, Jennifer has little time to relax. “I have an average of around eight hours of class a day, and often stay late to complete lab work,” she says. “When training and preparing food is factored in, there is hardly time to sleep.”

That makes her receipt of a Gordon Risk OSOTF Bursary a welcome opportunity. Established through a bequest from Mr. Gordon Risk, the bursary is awarded to a student demonstrating athletic leadership. “This award has helped reduce the financial stress, making it easier to focus on my academic and athletic goals,” she says. “The support that I and other student athletes receive is greatly appreciated and contributes immensely to our success.”

Jennifer has already achieved much success. Last fall, she and her Western teammates earned two gold medals and a second-place overall finish at the Canadian University Rowing Championships. As a member of Canada’s Under 23 (U23) women’s eight team, she helped set a world record and earn gold at the 2011 U23 World Rowing Championships.

“The support that I and other student athletes receive is greatly appreciated and contributes immensely to our success.”

“Because London is the training site for the women’s Olympic team, Western’s rowing program is among the best in the country, and this has led to many great opportunities to compete at a high level,” says Jennifer.

Her athletic and academic success, plus her volunteer work teaching underprivileged children water safety in Toronto, led to Jennifer being recognized as a Woman of Influence by Ontario University Athletics in 2012. “Rowing has been a huge part of my university career, and has definitely shaped me both as a person and a student,” says Jennifer, whose interest in rowing began during her first year at Western.

Today, Jennifer is pursuing a dental surgery degree at the Schulich School of Medicine & Dentistry. After graduating in 2014, she hopes to start her own dental practice – maybe after rowing for a couple of years to train for the national team.

However long she decides to row, Jennifer plans to give back some day. “I hope to be successful enough to give to Western,” she adds, “and create a scholarship to help out students, just as I’m being helped now.”
When Ryan Qiao recently hosted a radio show on Western’s CHRW, he talked like a pro. But that wasn’t always the case. “At first, talking on air made me really nervous, but after a while I found it very cool,” he says, with confidence.

That same growing confidence helped him succeed at Western, especially in the HBA program at the Richard Ivey School of Business. “My first year at Ivey was the most difficult year of my entire university life,” he says. “I was pushed to the limit, but what surprised me was discovering my potential. Looking back, I will never forget the hard work and rewards.”

While at Western, Ryan received the Lorraine Ivey Shuttleworth Continuing Award, endowed at Foundation Western. The scholarship is awarded to a full-time undergraduate student who maintains a minimum average of 75 per cent and demonstrates financial need. The award provided $12,000 during his last three years at Western, giving Ryan the necessary financial boost to make attending Ivey a possibility.

“Without the generous financial support, I wouldn’t have been able to make the decision of going to Ivey as quickly as I did,” he says. “It also provided me with the encouragement, motivation and support I needed to strive for academic excellence.”

“I was pushed to the limit, but what surprised me was discovering my potential. Looking back, I will never forget the hard work and rewards.”

Born in Beijing, Ryan immigrated to Canada at the age of 16, settling with his family in Toronto where he attended high school. Although his interest in business wasn’t initially apparent to him, he soon discovered after coming to Western that Ivey held the keys to his future.

“My courses gave me the necessary knowledge and concepts of general business,” he says. “It also allowed me in second year to specialize in the areas that interested me.”

Because of the award, Ryan could focus on his business studies – and explore the extracurricular side of student life. Such as his gig on student radio. “Working at the radio station really rounded out my Western education,” he says.

Now a Western graduate, Ryan is eager to build on his Ivey studies in accounting and finance. He’s now working toward becoming a chartered accountant.
Scholarships, Awards and Bursaries

Western maintains a fundamental commitment to ensure that no undergraduate student will be denied access or the ability to complete a degree because of financial need.

Your investment in a scholarship, award or bursary helps Western deliver an exemplary university experience that prepares graduates to be the leaders of tomorrow. For Western students in all programs across campus, receiving a scholarship, award or bursary can mean assistance with financial obligations, motivation to achieve academic excellence, and recognition of hard work and diligence.

Thank you for your part in advancing knowledge and transforming lives.

Donors can take great pride in what they give to Western because they’re investing in many bright and promising students who will contribute to a better society for everyone.”

MICHELLE AMRI, BHSc.’13 Recipient of the Parents’ Fund Award in the Faculty of Health Sciences

STUDENT AWARDS RECIPIENT REPORT 14
Through the graduate scholarship I received, I was able to continue my education, confirming that journalism was the perfect fit for my curiosity.

AARON RATHBONE, MA’12
Recipient of the Reader’s Digest Foundation Journalism Entrance Scholarship
I did not expect to receive this scholarship, and it has been a major blessing for me and my family. As a full-time student, I am constantly faced with the financial burden of tuition and high costs of living away from home. This scholarship has allowed me to enjoy a degree of financial freedom, for which I am extremely grateful.”

JAMIE HABERT, HBA/JD’14
Recipient of the Blake, Cassels & Graydon LLP Entrance Scholarship
My scholarships have allowed me to develop as a leader and further my education. What I’ve been able to accomplish at Western – in and out of the classroom – has made me a more well-rounded individual.”

Receiving my award has enabled me to spend more time learning in the hospital. My greatest experiences in medical school so far have been the observerships I’ve done in the hospitals, especially those in surgery. The knowledge I’ve gained from these experiences has been absolutely invaluable to me.”

Athletic Scholarships, Awards and Bursaries*

The foundation for the academic and athletic success of our Mustangs student-athletes is built with the help of many generous donors who support athletic scholarships, awards and bursaries. Financial support for athletes is critical on so many levels, from assisting with recruitment efforts, ensuring student-athletes excel in and out of the classroom, allowing teams to remain competitive on a provincial, national and international level and shaping citizens and leaders of tomorrow.

At Western, we are committed to raising funds in support of the Mustang’s Athletics Awards’ program. Below is a list of our athletic awards funded by donors to date, as well the student-athletes who received support this past academic year.

Recipient of the Bob Gage Athletic Leadership Award

* Awards are listed alphabetically using the first word in the name of the award.

I am beginning a double major in finance and economics, and plan on pursuing a master’s degree. This award will help take the financial pressure off of my mind and allow me to focus more on my academics and athletics.”

JERMAINE BERNARD, BA’15
Recipient of the Bob Gage Athletic Leadership Award
Definitions of Scholarships, Awards and Bursaries

The term “awards” is often used to refer to a grouping of scholarships, awards and bursaries. University Policy 2.10 defines the use of these titles as follows:

Award: A monetary payment given on the basis of a combination of academic and nonacademic criteria. Normally, a minimum “B” (70%) average is required for undergraduate students.

Bursary: A monetary award/payment based primarily on demonstrated financial need.

Scholarship: A monetary award having a fixed minimum value, based on general academic excellence (normally a minimum “A” (80%) average), or on excellence in a specific subject or group of subjects, and in some cases also on non-academic criteria.

Additional Information and Questions

Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy and completeness of the Student Awards Recipient Report, which lists all awards given out during the 2011/2012 academic year (September 2011 to mid-June 2012). Not all established awards are given out every year, based on the availability of qualified recipients who meet the terms of the award or other circumstances. Similarly, awards intended for multiple recipients may also not be given out in full number.

For the purposes of this publication, students have the option to maintain their privacy by requesting anonymity. Such requests have been honoured through the listing of “anonymous recipients.”

If you would like additional information or have questions about a student award you established, please contact Marcia Gibson in the Department of Alumni Relations & Development. t. 519.661.2111 ext. 88031, Email: mjgibson@uwo.ca

Student Appreciation

Western students are extremely grateful to benefit from donor support and all student award recipients are encouraged to prepare a thank you letter to the donor of their award. The Department of Alumni Relations & Development is pleased to forward all letters received to donors or award contacts.

If you would like to meet the recipient of the award you have established, please contact the Department of Alumni Relations & Development to determine if a meeting is possible. Most students are pleased to meet the donors who established their awards and welcome the opportunity to express their appreciation in person.

Thanks for your Extraordinary Investment

Western alumni who invest in endowed student awards held by Foundation Western provide annual support for students in perpetuity – and they help the Foundation advance the University’s mission by building a strong alumni endowment fund.

For more information, please visit foundation.uwo.ca

Global Opportunities Awards

Our goal is to establish a permanent series of Global Opportunities (GO) Awards to offer increasing numbers of Western students the chance to attend university outside Canada, participate in exchange programs, build communities around the world, and learn new languages and perspectives, in recognition of the importance of international programs for our students and their futures, the University is offering matching funds to our alumni and friends who choose to support the GO Awards at Western.

For more information about our plan to offer the world as a classroom to our students, please contact:
